

August is an auspicious month for QMII. On 26 August, QMII completed 38 years of contributing to the process-based management system approach for our clients and alumni. The weather changes as do industry demands. As summer fades and the back-to-school season approaches, the spirit of learning and growth is in the air—not just for students but for professionals in every field. Processes are not etched in stone! They need constant updating as do systems. More learning needs updated to better appreciate risks and seek opportunities for improvement (OFIs) and therefore with ever-evolving industry requirements, the pursuit of knowledge is a lifelong journey.

As we contribute our methodology and expertise in helping our clients and alumni achieve their objectives, we revisit the fundamentals, explore new concepts, and refine our skills. Today is an opportune time to reflect on the importance of standards in shaping our professional landscape.

This newsletter is dedicated to continual improvement.

Identifying Non-Conformities in Audits

By Julius DeSilva, Senior V.P

As an auditor with over 15 years of experience, I've seen how crucial it is for auditors, especially those who are new to the field, to correctly identify non-conformities without falling into the trap of....

FREE WEBINAR

"How NOT to Document a Management System"

Presented by Dr. IJ Arora, President/CEO

Date: Wednesday, September 4 - 11:00 a.m. to Noon (EDT)

Management systems that are poorly documented or over-documented can lead to inefficiencies and frustration. Documentation is a critical component of any management system, but when done poorly, it can create more problems than it solves. We'll guide you through examples of what to avoid, from over-complicating processes and using inconsistent language, to common misinterpretation of standard requirements. You'll gain a better understanding of how to ensure your documentation is clear, concise, and effective. Whether you're developing a new system or refining an existing one, this webinar will equip you with practical tips to avoid these costly errors and ensure your management system supports your organizational goals. Let's dive in and learn how to document smarter, not harder!
